Description :

PDF-aa22e | When West Africa is mentioned in a historical context, it is usually presented as the traditional hunting ground for slaves. Very few writers have shown any interest in the contributions of West Africans to science and technology. Thus there has been very little research that challenges the perspective that all that West Africans have ever been historically is to be under the whip of other peoples... West African Contributions to Science and Technology (Reklaw Education Lecture Series Book 11)
