Description :

PDF-cafb1 | The creation of Africa's newest state, South Sudan, in 2011, involved national and international recognition of "traditional authorities", or chiefs. Chiefship has often been misunderstood to be a timeless or non-state institution, but this book argues for the mutual constitution of chiefship and the state since the mid-nineteenth century, based on research in the vicinity of three towns. The boo... Dealing with Government in South Sudan: Histories of Chiefship, Community and State (Eastern Africa Series)
